Art Unit: 3641

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1-2 and 12-19 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over each of Menke et al. '661, Ryder, and Fleming et al. '906 and '975.

Each of these references teach compositions which include ammonium nitrate (AN), carbon black, and various stabilizers. These include phase stabilizers for AN, stabilizers for various added ingredients, and so on. In Ryder et al., particularly, note col. 6, lines 19-65 including the example amounts. Indeed, these references may be the epitome of obviousness, anticipation, as to the broader claims as now written. See In re Pearson, 181 USPQ 641 (CCPA 1974). In Menke et al., note col. 4, the table, wherein the ammonium nitrate includes a phase stabilizer at 3% as well as carbon black at 1/2 %. In the Fleming et al. documents, note the various compositions in the Tables, with additives including various stabilizers and carbon black. Variation of specific notoriously well known ingredients, particle sizes, propellant conformation (tubular and multi-hole propellants) and amounts, are all notoriously well known in the art, and would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art. It is well settled that optimizing a result effective variable is well within the expected ability of a person of ordinary skill in the subject art. In re Boesch, 617 F.2d 272, 205 USPQ 215 (CCPA 1980), In re Aller, 220 F.2d 454, 105 USPQ 233 (CCPA 1955).

3. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Gardner (col. 2, lines 26 and 34), Goldstein et al. and Wu further teach compositions with AN and carbon fuel, while Walsh (col. 5, lines 59-65), the drawings of Japanese 10-120484 and Johansson et al. further teach regarding standard propellant physical conformations or structure.
